Ask	Say 1 to 1	Say 1 to many	Do
“So, what are we going to do about it?” (your team).	“So, what are you going to do about it?” (to avoid someone making their problem, yours).	“I have a lot of time for... ” then name someone who is not present.	A presentation without a PowerPoint in sight.
“What is your biggest strength or passion that you don’t get a chance to use every day?”	“I really love working with you because... ”	Take the praise for nothing and the blame for everything.	Identify your successor and tell them.
(In a meeting). “Is that a true decision?”	“If you did know, what would you say?” (In reply to someone who says “I don’t know”).	For one day replace “but” with “and” in all you write and say.	Be nice to someone you don’t have to – have a chat with a receptionist/ cleaner.
“How can I help you?”	“What kind of ...”? (Word they have used a lot e.g. “success” / “performance” / “results”).	“Thank You” - and mean it. (Also, accept any and every compliment).	Next time you get a nasty email, reply in a genuinely positive way.
